Re: Proposal to change admission requirements in graduate programs in Educational Administration

On May 12, 2017, the Graduate Programs Committee (GPC) reviewed requested changes to admission requirements and selection criteria in graduate programs in Educational Administration. The proposed changes are requested to bring the admission requirements in line with the CGPS minimum admission requirements. The Department of Educational Administration is requesting these changes to enhance their ability to admit mature, indigenous, and international students.

During the GPC review, members discussed how the department provides graduate-level training in education and leadership – valuable training for people employed or seeking employment in post-secondary institutions with varying background experiences.

The Graduate Programs Committee passed the following motion:

To recommend approval of the revised admission requirements in graduate programs in Educational Administration. Kulshreshtha/Pollak unanimous CARRIED

Proposal Document

Please provide information which covers the following sub topics. The length and detail should reflect the scale or importance of the program or revision. Documents prepared for your college may be used. Please expand this document as needed to embrace all your information.

1. Academic justification:
   a. Is there a particular student demographic this program admissions change is targeted towards and, if so, what is that target? (e.g., Aboriginal, mature, international, returning)

The department of Educational Administration is looking to diversify enrolment. Many mature students are interested in our programming. We would like to reduce our admission requirements to be consistent with CGPS minimum admission requirements to increase the diversity of our applicant pool.

Some of these students convocated with their undergraduate degree two or three decades earlier. Following that earlier degree, these potential students have engaged in a number of professional opportunities and made personal life choices at different points of their adult lives. When they do decide to return to postsecondary education, they sometimes lack the requisite previous experiences. Many of our potential students are leaders in their organizations and schools and now understand the desirability of further education.
Additionally, we have many more Indigenous students applying to our graduate programs, and they are often leaders within their communities. Our international student applications are also increasing significantly. In order to improve access for mature students and our increasingly diverse applicant pool, we are proposing several changes to our admissions requirements. These changes would align our department’s requirements with those of the College of Graduate and Postdoctoral Studies and would reduce confusion during the application process.

We are also proposing that the admission requirements for the Post Graduate Diploma be aligned with those of CGPS, as a natural extension of the changes to the Master’s program.

At the same time, we would like to take this opportunity to introduce a slight change to the admission for the Master’s thesis program. So that faculty may better judge the applicants’ writing skills and potential; the application for the thesis program will have two additional submission documents required. Students will be asked to submit a writing sample of at least 6 pages, and a statement of intent outlining their research interests and describing their potential research. A template and instructions for this written submission will be available on the departmental home page.

In addition, we would like to align the admission requirements for the M.Ed. in Educational Administration with the admission requirements for the M.Ed. in Leadership in Postsecondary Education program in our department.

2. Admissions

  a. What are the admissions requirements of this program?

This request for a change in admissions requirements would bring the Department of Educational Administration’s entrance requirements into alignment with the College of Graduate and Postdoctoral Studies requirements. This change would reduce confusion for applicants and would address the concerns expressed in Section 1 a. regarding our increasingly diverse student population.

In the following sections, the proposed changes to admissions are indicated in red font.

4. Consultation

N/A  No changes are being proposed to the programs, only the admission requirements.
