TENURE TRACK FACULTY POSITIONS

The College of Law at the University of Saskatchewan is seeking candidates for up to four tenure-track positions for appointment on July 1, 2009.

Applications are invited from those with an interest in all areas of public and private law. The College has a particular interest in candidates with an interest and expertise in Aboriginal Law, Business Law, Taxation Law, Dispute Resolution and Torts. As well, through the newly established David Sutherland – Law Foundation of Saskatchewan Endowment, the College has resources to recruit a 'Scholar' in Aboriginal Business Law.

The College of Law has a long and distinguished history of legal education and scholarship. The College has recently commenced a program of dynamic growth and revitalization. This process builds upon a strong teaching and research foundation in a highly collegial environment. The main elements of this process of growth and revitalization are the significant expansion of our faculty complement, the development of 'state of the art' student services and the construction of a significant addition to, and modernization of, the physical premises that comprise the College of Law. New faculty members will play a significant role in this revitalization.

More information on the College and on its strategic direction for the coming years can be found on the Web site at www.usask.ca/law, or from Dean Brent Cotter at brent.cotter@usask.ca.
