

2015 Achievement Record

Development of the U of S Achievement Record

Institutions hold themselves accountable because they care about the quality and impact of what they do, and because they value their relationships with the public and with stakeholder groups. Accountability takes many forms, including annual reports, speeches and presentations by leaders, and meetings with interested communities. All forms of accountability must be backed by information that is clear, transparent, accessible and that is presented with a minimum of commentary. It is essential to convey institutional achievements widely, succinctly and based on evidence.

\ In the past, the online Achievement Record was promoted with an accompanying printed brochure, but there is much more information available online, including expandable details at the college level. The Achievement Record is now available primarily online (www.usask.ca/achievementrecord), with a high level summary version available in Acrobat pdf format.*

Teaching, Learning and the Student Experience

Students

Total number of undergraduate students in each year

Student Cohort	2011/2012	2012/2013	2013/2014	2014/2015
Aboriginal	1,778	1,884	2,081	2,250
International	1,013	1,108	1,167	1,290

Note: Student headcounts from previous years have been restated to include retroactive adjustments in registration activity.

Total number of graduate students in each year

Student Cohort	2011/2012	2012/2013	2013/2014	2014/2015
Aboriginal	177	208	241	239
International	990	1,140	1,210	1,248

Note: Student headcounts from previous years have been restated to include retroactive adjustments in registration activity.

Instructional Activity

Number of three credit unit equivalent registrations (3CUE) in each year

Note: Instructional activity from previous years has been restated to include retroactive adjustments in registration activity.

Student Completion Rates

Percentage of first-time, full-time direct entry students who graduated within a six-year time frame

Note: The cohort definition for student completion rates has been modified to follow CSRDE (Consortium of Student Retention Data Exchange) standards (see <http://www.usask.ca/achievementrecord/teaching-learning/student-completion-rates-definition.php>).

\ Entry and final year of the six-year time frame shown on the graph.*

Overall Satisfaction

Percentage of students who responded favourably to questions about their overall quality of education/evaluation of their entire educational experience

Learning Outcomes

In progress

According to the University of Saskatchewan (U of S) Learning Charter(2010), achieving the learning vision and goals to which we aspire requires the active commitment of students, instructors, and the institution. In the Third Integrated Plan, Promise and Potential, we have set the goal of having defined learning outcomes for all undergraduate and graduate programs by 2016. Considerable activity designed to reach this goal was undertaken in 2012-13. In its first full year of operation at the Gwenna Moss Centre for Teaching Effectiveness, the Curriculum Development Group worked with 12 colleges, 3 schools, 46 departments and the Library on aspects of curriculum development and instructional design. Learning outcomes in professional colleges are closely tied to accreditation requirements. Program- and college-level learning goals (also called learning assurances, degree expectations) are evident in all of the direct entry colleges (Agriculture and Bioresources, Arts and Science, Edwards School of Business, Engineering, Kinesiology). Similarly, the College of Graduate Studies and Research has established learning outcomes for each of the four graduate degrees (PGD, PGDSC, Master's, and Doctoral). There is clear alignment and overlap between the articulation of program-level learning goals within colleges and the core goals outlined in the Learning Charter. Work in moving from a higher level of goals to learning outcomes at the departmental level (where appropriate) continues. Some colleges (e.g. Engineering and Arts and Science), have advanced to the stage of creating and piloting assessment rubrics for the purpose of evaluating whether learning outcomes are being achieved.

Principles of the U of S Achievement Record

1. The Achievement Record should be widely discussed and collaboratively used.
2. The Achievement Record should support multiple purposes.
3. To serve its varied purposes, the Achievement Record should be simple.
4. Indicators ought to measure, as much as practical, the things that are meaningful or important to the organization.
5. Initially, the University of Saskatchewan should focus on a practical initial set of indicators, leaving more elaborate development for later if needed.

We are working toward becoming an engaged university. Many of the indicators of our success require further development as part of our commitment to quality and accountability.
